Mary Ellen Armentrout is a library historian who has spent her career working in academic, special and public libraries. Her love and devotion to the history of libraries, especially Carnegie libraries, has lead her to write the book, Carnegie Libraries of Ohio. The book documents 111 libraries in Ohio that were granted by the philanthropist, Andrew Carnegie.

She is a wonderful public speaker and looks forward to sharing her experience, knowledge and wonderment of the Ohio Carnegie Library. Mary Ellen Armentrout holds a B.A. degree from Otterbein College and a MLS from Indiana University. She is an active voice in the celebration and preservation of Ohio's Carnegie Libraries.
